Water is life and the lack of water means death. Any living thing cannot go on living without water. Plants need water to grow. Animals need water to drink. People need water to * drink and to use in cleaning, cooking, farming and irrigating their lands. We can get water from rivers and lakes. But the main source of water is the rain. In the desert, people dig deep wells to get water. For keeping water from being wasted, people build dams for storing water in reservoirs that form behind the dams. Water is stored in water towers that supply

Read the following passage and answer the questions below:

| In some areas of the world, multigenerational families have always lived together in the same house. A multigenerational family is a family of different generations, for | 6 |
|--|--|
| example, grandparents, parents, and children. In the United States, from 1940 through 20 multigenerational living decreased. Americans dreamed of growing up, leaving their family and having a home of their own. Having one's own home was a status symbol. It showed that person was independent and financially prosperous. Grandparents, too, seemed happy with this arrangement. They saved enough money through their life to be able to live independently through their retirement years and to pay for or care if they became ill. It has only been in recent years that this trend has begun to char slower economy and fewer jobs have caused people to have less money than they once did. Americans are beginning to find it too expensive to live separately. The Clark family from Virginia is a good example of this phenomenon. The Clarks are a multigenerational family that were living in three different houses. The great-grandparents lived in an expensive retirement home, the grandparents lived in their large, old family home, and the parents lived with their two young children in a small apartment. All of the family members were struggling financially. They didn't have enough money to live comfortably in their separate homes. So, the Clark family sold all three thems and bought one, large, old, wooden farmhouse that had enough room for all of live in comfort together. The Clarks say they are happier now that they are all together. To now able to share the chores around the house as well as the cost of the house. And, while were once too busy to see each other often, now they have more time to see each other as spend more time on leisure activities. So, for now at least, it looks like the trend of living multigenerational families will continue in the United States. A-Answer these questions: 1 - What is a multigenerational family? | home, t a hout utside age. A ve eee of them to They are a they s well as |

Read the following passage then answer the questions French Fries

French fries are one of the most common food around the world. French fries are long, thin pieces of potato fried in oil or fat. Vegetables oil is the best fat to make amazing fries. French fries are served hot, either soft or crispy, and are generally eaten as part of lunch or dinner or by themselves as a snack, and they commonly appear on the menus of diners and fast food restaurants. French Fries are usually salted and, depending on the country, may be served with ketchup, mayonnaise or tomato sauce.

To achieve golden-brown perfection, you have to fry them twice: first at a low temperature, to poach them; then at a high heat, to crisp them up. Actually, French fries are better when cooked at restaurants. Some people got addicted to French Fries because they don't need a fork or spoon to eat them. They can eat French fries with their fingers.

Many restaurants selling French fires frequently combine servings of fries with another food, for example, fried fish or beef burgers. In fact, French fries go with hot dogs, hamburgers, fish and all sorts of sandwiches. Many countries in every corner of the globe have their own way of eating this beloved dish.
